

I. Phases of Pandemic

The World Health Organization (WHO), the medical arm of the United Nations, has developed a global preparedness plan that includes a classification system for guiding planning and response activities for a pandemic. This classification system is comprised of six phases of increasing public health risk associated with the emergence and spread of a new virus subtype that may lead to a pandemic. The Director-General of WHO formally declares the current global pandemic phase and adjusts the phase level to correspond with pandemic conditions around the world. For each phase, the global preparedness plan identifies response measures WHO will take, and recommends actions that countries around the world should implement.

Pandemic Phases	Public Health Goals	Local Public Schools Goals
Inter-Pandemic Period Phase 1 – No new virus subtypes detected in humans. A virus subtype that has caused human infection may be present in animals. If present in animals, the risk of human infection or disease is considered low. Phase 2 – No new virus subtypes detected in humans. However, a circulating animal virus subtype poses a substantial risk of human disease.	Strengthen pandemic preparedness at all levels. Closely monitor human and animal surveillance data. Minimize the risk of transmission to humans; detect and report such transmission rapidly if it occurs.	Ensure that staff members and students be trained in preventative measures such as respiratory etiquette, universal precautions, and proper handwashing techniques. Minimize the risk of transmission to humans; ensure that staff members understand detection and reporting guidelines and report rapidly as required.
Pandemic Alert Period Phase 3 – Human infection(s) are occurring with a new subtype, but no human-to-human spread, or at most rare instances of spread to a close contact. Phase 4 – Small cluster(s) of human infection with the limited human-to-human transmission, but the spread is highly localized, suggesting that the virus is not well adapted to humans. Phase 5 – Larger cluster(s) of human infection but the human-to-human spread is localized, suggesting that the virus is becoming increasingly better adapted to humans, but may not yet be fully transmissible (substantial pandemic risk).	Ensure rapid characterization of the new virus subtype and early detection, notification, and response to additional cases. Contain the new virus within limited foci or delay spread to gain time to implement preparedness measures, including vaccine development. Maximize efforts to contain or delay spread, or possibly avert a pandemic, and to gain time to implement response measures.	Ensure staff is knowledgeable about the latest infection control information. Ensure that best practices for infection detection and control measures are to be followed. Ensure adequate resources for staff/student protection. Ensure the school Local Education Agency is implementing best practices for social distancing techniques per local health agency guidelines, including reducing the school activity calendar.

		Maximize communications with parents related to health and safety.
Pandemic Period Phase 6 – Pandemic is declared. Increased and sustained transmission in the general population.	Implement response measures, including social distancing, to minimize pandemic impacts.	Refer to social distancing, isolation, and quarantine measures. Ensure maximum support and education for students who are affected by the pandemic.
